Brezhnev Succession

In the first of a series of planned NIO brainstorming sessions with Sovietologists around the Community, the NIO and Assistant NIO for the USSR visited FBIS 1 April to talk with Soviet affairs specialists in the FBIS Analysis Group on the Soviet succession. The issues include personalities involved, the impact of a Brezhnev departure on institutional roles in the Soviet Union, and the implications for policy. [Redacted]

DIA Special Actions Division

At the request of the DIA Special Actions Division, FBIS provided 28 excerpts from the Soviet media dealing with Soviet perceptions of the strategic nuclear balance, for passing to the ICA representative in Rome. ICA was seeking the material for use by the state-run Italian radio and television network. The material came from the FBIS PASKEY file which includes segments of Soviet comment on a number of significant themes. [Redacted]

Broadcast Information

The FBIS Field Coverage Staff, which maintains data relating to international broadcasting, is often called by various elements of the government for information or opinions regarding the field of broadcasting. Recently, for example, OMB wondered why the Soviets are able to conduct international broadcasting from domestic transmitters while the United States needs overseas transmitter sites. FBIS provided some background on antenna usage by the Soviets and Soviet broadcasting facilities. NSA also queried the FCS recently for data on clandestine broadcasting in El Salvador.
